WHO?

Carlos is a self-taught artist and front-end developer. Most of his knowledge and experience comes from the All Mighty Internet; where he follows blogs from recognized artists and developers. Nonetheless, he still goes to school for he values the ideas and feedback that his instructors provide.

Skilled at the use of electronics from a very early age, Carlos grew interested in computers. He gained experience at troubleshooting computers problems but did not find it very interesting. Then, he found a cozy place to live in between the worlds of Art & Technology. As he adventured in the world of HTML

IRS Increases Mileage Rate to 55.5 Cents per Mile

Business Taxes

The Internal Revenue Service today announced an increase in the optional standard mileage rates for the final six months of 2011. Taxpayers may use the optional standard rates to calculate the deductible costs of operating an automobile for business and other purposes.

The rate will increase to 55.5 cents a mile for all business miles driven from July 1, 2011, through Dec. 31, 2011. This is an increase of 4.5 cents from the 51 cent rate in effect for the first six months of 2011, as set forth in Revenue Procedure 2010-51.

NON-PROFIT

Protest against Befesa

Over the last year, an international company, Befesa, has attempted to build a chemical waste treatment plant near the village where Carlos was born, in Peru. We know that due to the lack of technology and care, this plant can only mean bad news to the villagers.

Despite not having the proper authorization, the company had already started the construction of this plant. These actions alarmed the community which very quickly organized to help defend their land.

Through the use of networking websites & ads, we were able to gather the support of the community and hold back Befesa. However the fight isn't over yet and today we are still doing what we can to stop them.
